

JULIE COLLINS BA

Julie is an examiner and moderator for the English Speaking Board International and enjoys the privilege of assessing both throughout the UK and around the world. Destinations have included China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia and Trinidad and Tobago, to name but a few. Julie is currently the Head of Oracy at Moon Hall School, a dyslexia specialist school situated in Surrey, teaching communication skills. Prior to that she was Head of Drama at Cranmore School, a private preparatory school based in Surrey, for 18 years with responsibilities which included teaching class drama lessons, L.A.M.D.A and ESB tuition and directing all senior school drama productions. Before taking up the teaching position at Cranmore she was an Ice Dance Professional and after a successful amateur career, she coached and choreographed professionally both in England and abroad at national and international level with couples competing at European, World and Olympic championships. She also judged at a national level for the National Skating Association of Great Britain for several years. Julie was Guildhall trained in Drama and subsequently gained a BA in journalism. She has enjoyed a varied and exciting professional life which has encompassed performing, teaching, choreography, assessing, adjudicating and working in global advertising. Through this, it has enabled her to gain a vast knowledge of the many forms of communication and performance skills that are paramount to the modern world.